Skylab's Final Destination Unknown, But Preparations Are Not Lacking

As every Henny-Penny knows, Skylab is scheduled to fall somewhere, sometime between 3:21 a.m. this Wednesday morning and 9:21 p.m. this Wednesday night ... unless, of course, it falls at some other time.

At 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Borough Police Chief and Civil Defense Officer Michael Carnevale activated Princeton's Civil Defense Emergency Operating Center, following instructions from Mercer County Civil Defense Office.

Princeton is unique in Mercer County – and certainly unusual in the state – because police and civil defense are the same. Chief Carnevale is head, and Township Police Chief Fred Porter is deputy.

The CD telephone, 924-4959, in Borough Hall, has been hooked in to the police lines and this means the number will be on call 24 hours a day.

Both chiefs joined their colleagues in Trenton for an 8 a.m. meeting June 14 to talk with Mercer County Civil Defense directors about Skylab. This meeting was, in turn, a spinoff from a state meeting. It was at this time that the county asked CD directors to open Emergency Operating Centers for 24 hours prior to Skylab's re-entry.

After the meeting, Princeton's chiefs summoned fire and first aid personnel here in Princeton. (First Aid and Rescue Squad representatives came, reports Chief Carnevale; no fire-fighters showed.)

Like people all over the world, Princeton residents have followed the winding down of Skylab with a kind of numb fascination, coupling their natural curiosity with a nervous gallows humor. The chances that a fragment might fetchingly alight on the head of the Palmer Square tiger seemed remote, and yet ...

Princeton is full of astronomers, but they are a different breed from the tense men and women in the Space Defense Center of the North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs, charged with tracking the wayward space station.

"I'm not advising NASA, nor have I been in contact," commented Lyman Spitzer Jr. the other day. Dr. Spitzer is Charles A. Young Professor of Astronomy and chairman of the department of Astrophysical Sciences at Princeton University. He is also director of the University observatory.

"... but I followed the development of Skylab from the start, and many useful space tools were developed through Skylab. It was one of the few satellites that was manned, so that one could use film or photographic plates, and that has advantages for some kinds of research."

"One of the most compact and heaviest things to drop will be the safe that protected film from exposure to radiation. I don't suppose there's any film left in it – probably only somebody's lunch! But that safe has a big ratio of mass to air, and it could come down at a pretty good clip."

Some estimates give 4,000 pounds as the safe's weight. The airlock shroud is estimated to be 5,000 pounds, in a NASA information booklet provided to

Three Plans for Square Expansion Still Survive; Committee Hopes to Reach Decision by July 25

In a four-hour meeting Monday night, members of the Borough citizens Steering Committee, consultants from Venturi and Rauch and a standing-room-only audience poked and snipped and patched three design alternatives – "X," "Z" and "Omega" – for the Palmer Square area.

There had been four. But the YM-YWCA has declined to turn over its playing fields to Princeton Community Housing's apartments for the elderly, Princeton University said the land behind One Bayard Lane isn't available either, and the Shopping Center is not in the Borough's Central Business district. So Plan "Y" to remove PCH from Palmer Square, was discarded.

The Steering Committee will meet this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Borough Hall and again at 7:30 p.m. July 24 for work sessions, hoping to emerge July 25 with "the plan." Venturi and Rauch will then refine for September public presentation.

The three alternatives are slightly different from those in last week's TOWN TOPICS. Venturi and Rauch added to each a three-story commercial strip along Palmer Square east across from the back of the post office, and retained expansion of the Nassau Inn in all three.

Denise Scott Brown, partner in Venturi and Rauch, warned at the start of Monday's meeting of "a tussle" between Palmer Square, Inc., which wants to sell offices that have parking, and residents who don't want it. The tussle was evident, but tempers were even throughout a long evening.

Alternative X: A 100-unit, five-story PCH apartment is on the library lot, with 34 ground-level parking spaces behind it. When Arch Davis protested, "But that PCH is as big as the garage!" Ms. Scott Brown replied, "Yes, but you don't have cars peering at you."

"X" has a five-level garage on Spring; a three-level (half a level below grade) garage at Chambers North and a four-level structure at Chambers south, for a total of 890 spaces. About half – 768 – of the 1,506 long-term parking spaces would be in fringe parking.

As the consultants see it, the advantage of this plan is that it gives the elderly PCH residents a convenient, central location. It also reduces traffic impact on Vandeventer and other east streets, and makes a "useful urban plaza" next to the library.

But it does mean heavy traffic on Chambers, and "visual impact" of the garages on neighborhoods across Paul Robeson and Chambers from the CBD.

Alternative Z: Here, PCH is back at the Hulfish lot next to the present Playhouse. A commercial "L" is in

Will YOU Support The Playhouse? — Six-Month Test to Begin

The popcorn will cost more than the admission ticket when the Princeton Playhouse re-opens Thursday, July 26 (8:30 p.m., but you'd better get in line early).

"The Awful Truth," one of those late-show comedies from 1937 starring Cary Grant and Irene Dunne, was the movie that opened the new Playhouse on December 9, 1937. Admission was 40 cents.

"The Awful Truth" – one of the few remaining 35mm prints of the film, offered by Columbia Pictures – will be the re-opener on July 26, 1979. Admission will be 40 cents, and there will indeed be popcorn and of course, selected short subjects.

Plans to re-open the 1,240-seat theatre were announced this week by Carl W. Schafer, president of Palmer Square, Inc. The press conference was held in the inner lobby with reporters leaning on the candy counter because auditorium seats and lights aren't quite ready for the opening.

It's to be a six-month experiment, a kind of challenge to the Princeton community – "Come on, now, do you really want a full-time movie theatre?"

William W. Lockwood Jr., who books films for Movies-from-McCarter and Summer Cinema and has been programming movies for McCarter since 1963, will be program director. Irving Dollinger will be the theatre's professional film buyer.

"How delighted we are that we can re-open the Playhouse!" Mr. Schafer exclaimed as he leaned on the candy counter.

After "The Awful Truth"'s single showing, the Playhouse will show the PG version of "Saturday Night Fever." It will start Friday, July 27, and will run for ten days – two weekends.

Playhouse

This scheduling is to be the exception, however. As a rule, films to be shown through mid-September, will be changed weekly.

Most of them will be second runs of recent commercial films. Mr. Lockwood said he hoped to book "Heaven Can Wait," "Deer Hunter," "Coming Home," "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," and similar releases.

The Playhouse will be open to screen them every evening in the week. There will be no matinees.

In the middle of September, the programming will change. With the return of University students, the shift will be to a modified repertory format, with a more diverse selection than during the late summer months. In fall and early winter, the Playhouse will show some new titles that haven't been shown here, an occasional revival of a classic, the "McCarter Series" type and some second runs.

Occasionally, there may be "festivals" -- three or four films with the same actor, or by the same director or with a common theme. Mr. Lockwood and Mr. Schafer both emphasized that Playhouse programs will change frequently.

The Garden Theatre, still under the Sameric management, will continue to show first run popular films, like the current James Bond.

Mr. Lockwood said he regarded the autumn as "the meat" of what he called "a noble experiment."

"We'll be adding films that never made it, that were overlooked – McCarter-style. U.S. and foreign films not yet shown in Princeton, or shown in Montgomery or at the malls but not for long, the things that open and close fast in New York. We might even have two weekly."

Competition is "very fierce" for any film at all, he warned. Between Princeton and Trenton there are 13 first-run houses, all scrambling for films. And the Playhouse is entering the summer market late.

He hopes, he said, to attract not only the movie buff who goes all the time, but the casual movie-goer who attends "only once or twice a month." He made a plea to these movie-goers, remarking in a prepared release that "many who lamented the closing of (the Playhouse) seldom if ever attended while it was open."

"If the audience turns out to be there, it ought to show up in this long a test," Mr. Schafer remarked, "and if the audience is indeed there, I see no reason why we can't have something smaller in the way of a theatre to show that kind of film, in an expanded Palmer Square. If the audience isn't there, it's valuable to know it."

The 1,240-seat Playhouse is "an anachronism" in today's world, Mr. Lockwood said. Even a 400-seat theatre is "large" today. PSI could build twin theatres, he said, that would take up "a fraction of the space" of the present Playhouse.

Although Mr. Schafer doesn't expect to fill the big theatre, he says he has no goal figure for audience attendance. PSI will, of course, keep track of that attendance. It won't be a big moneymaker (Mr. Lockwood spoke joyously of Summer Cinema and said it was breaking records), but popcorn will help.

Mr. Lockwood spoke bleakly of popcorn (Popcorn! During an Ingmar Bergman!" and he shuddered), but conceded that concessions are a major economic piece of today's theatre picture.

After that heady 40 cent admission on July 26, the Playhouse will charge a flat $2.50. Later, theatre-goers will be able to buy a 10-ticket booklet for $20.

Petitioners Wage 11th Hour Battle To Save Playhouse from Demolition

A 148-signature petition against razing the Princeton Playhouse was presented Monday to Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley on the day Palmer Square, Inc. announced that the movie theatre will re-open July 26 for a six-month experiment.

The petition was directed to the Borough, asking the municipality "NOT to plan the destruction of the Playhouse" before signers had a chance to prove it would work as a performing arts center.

Mayor Cawley reminded petitioners that it's PSI, owner of the structure, and not the Borough that plans to tear down the theatre. He characterized the idea of a performing arts center, offering ballet, concerts, films, theatre and opera as "Fantastic!" but explained that "Somebody must sponsor it."

"Experts have advised us," the petition says, that the Playhouse could "easily and effectively" be made into a multi-purpose auditorium at moderate cost.

"It's extremely late in the day," Mayor Cawley continued, "plans for razing the Playhouse have been known for over a year, we've been doodling since January with CBD plans, and now a real push to save the Playhouse is just coming up."

William W. Lockwood Jr., program director for the reopened theatre, told reporters Monday that it was "not practical" to leave the Playhouse standing, and Carl Schafer, PSI president, said the timing of tearing down the theatre could depend on when Palmer Square expansion begins. The Playhouse might go on, he said, until expansion starts. PSI has no plans, he added, if there is no expansion.

The petition was sparked by Charles Agle, former planner for the Borough, who has long had a keen interest in the Playhouse. Signatories included James and Ruth Thornton, former mayor Henry S. Patterson, former governor Roher Meyner, Betty Fussell--who had been the moving force behind a community movie theatre--William H. Scheide, architects A. Perry Morgan, Philetus H. Holt and William Short, Audree Estey, Mary A. Bundy, Anne Reeves and representatives of various performing arts groups.

Skylab

Mercer County Civil Defense officials.

Dr. Spitzer points out that Skylab was the victim of a double blow: the expected space shuttle was supposed to have been ready by now, and scientists didn't realize there would be so much solar activity. It has meant that the density of atoms was much greater than normal, and this slowed the space station down and caused it to lose altitude.

He added that most of Skylab was deliberately made of lightweight materials, and the NASA information booklet points out that man-made space objects decay at an average rate of eight or nine a month and anyway, we're bombarded by meteorites all the time.

Borough Grants First Aid Squad Partial Support, But Expects Township and Hospital to Help Also

"The Squad just wants us to give some signal of committment," explained Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley to Thursday night's council agenda meeting.

Council did, unanimously, but only after a crucial word, "partially," was inserted at the request of Council member Charles Cornforth to limit the degree of support the Squad could expect from the Borough.

The First Aid and Rescue Squad's own annual budget is $32,500. That's about $16,000 for the rest of this year. Mr. Cornforth said firmly that he wanted it divided with the Township on a rateables basis -- under which the Borough would pay about one-third -- not in a 50-50 split.

The Squad's report is on the agenda of Township Committee for this Wednesday's meeting.

"Long range, the responsibility for the Squad's daytime 9-5 shift is the hospital's," Mr. Cornforth declared. "The hospital cannot just sit back and shrug it off as somebody else's. It should not shirk its daytime responsibility. The hospital collects a lot of money from this town."

"That's an extraordinary expenditure we'd have to pass on to the consumer," replied Dennis Doody, executive vice-president of the Medical Center. "Then we'd have to provide daytime coverage for the other communities whose rescue squads we also serve."

"We are the host of the Medical Center and Princeton bears all the hospital's traffic," Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley retorted, "Jack Kauffman (the hospital's president) knows how the Planning Board feels about what Princeton has contributed."

Full-Time Personnel. The key element in the discussion was the hiring of full-time trained personnel who would respond to daytime calls. They would need 600 hours of special training.

Borough Police Chief Michael Carnevale announced that he was prepared to offer two officers from 9 to 5 Mondays through Fridays until a budget was worked out, but his offer wasn't greeted with much enthusiasm.

"It has complex implications," said Squad president Joe Derman cautiously, referring to insurance and legal problems. Chief Carnevale bristled when Allan Haskins, chairman of the Ninth District of the New Jersey First Aid Council and Mr. Derman both warned that qualification was a vital factor.

"We have people who are qualified," Chief Carnevale said shortly.

Who Pays? Who would pay the salaries of full-time paramedics and whose employees would they be?

There was sentiment for asking the hospital to hire them to work 60 percent of the time, and 40 percent for the Squad, but Mr. Doody demurred: "I can't staff an Emergency Room with 60 percent of a person," he said.

Since an eight-hour day isn't filled every day with emergencies, what would the paramedics do with their spare time? Telephone surveys for Opinion Research, suggested Mayor Cawley, half-seriously.

Cap limits imposed on budgets by the state, may make it impossible for Borough or Township to be the employer, it was explained, but Mr. Haskins suggested that new line items might be free of caps and Mr. Derman remarked that the law allows the public to decide through referendum whether an item should be included in the budget.

Mayor Cawley said he was more worried about the effect on the tax rate than on exceeding the budget cap. Council members Martin P. Lombardo and Leona Medvin suggested that other agencies -- such as Shade Tree Commission and Recreation -- might have to see their budgets trimmed to provide parings for the First Aid Squad.

After the two-hour discussion, it was decided that the Squad's citizen committee would talk with Squad members about Chief Carnevale's offer and would investigate other sources of money like CETA, for paramedic salaries.

PLAN SPECIAL MEETING

Of Planning Board. An extra catch-up meeting of the Princeton Regional Planning Board will be held next Tuesday. The usual time and place have been changed, and the meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the meeting room of Township Hall.

The board will continue its hearings on the subdivision plans of Albert Salzman and of G.R.D. Associates. In addition, it will hold a re-hearing on plans for Peterson's Guides and Wren Associates, Inc. The firms are moving their proposed buildings because of budgetary considerations, and will be asking for variances related to the moves.

At last week's regular Planning Board meeting, W. Bryce Thompson IV received approval for two five-acre southern lots in his 20-acre office-research tract in the northeast township, but was denied approval for the two northern parcels.

The board told Mr. Thompson Herrontown Road would have to end in a cul-de-sac; otherwise, it might

Borough Hall Roof Is New Home For Township's Police Antenna

Gently, soundlessly, with none of the municipal static that went before, the Township's 145-foot radio tower was lowered on Friday to its new home on the roof of Borough Hall -- perhaps in view of the Consolidation Study Commission's vote the week before to recommend consolidation, a symbolic act.

The Township asked permission of the Borough to move the tower because it would be 80 feet higher on Borough Hall's roof than it would be at Township Hall. The additional height was required so that the Township's new Ultra High Frequency police radio equipment could function efficiently.

The antenna must now be transferred from the Borough tower to the Township tower and other technical adjustments completed. By this week-end, estimates Township Police Chief Fred Porter, the new system will be hooked up. There are now only three communities in Mercer County with VHF police radio: Hopewell Township, East Windsor, and Princeton Borough. The Township will retain its VHF.

The new $44,000 system also includes a base station in Borough Hall, shared with the Borough, a repeater station on Balcort Drive's water tower allowing signals to leap the ridge in the northern part of the community, and walkie-talkies whose signals can even penetrate stone buildings.

No longer are there the kinds of dead spots that used to mean a patrol car near Kingston Bridge couldn't talk to a car on Province Line.

Although Borough and Township police cannot communicate directly, there is a cross-monitering system using the base station in Borough Hall. As the Township transmits, Borough police can pick up the signal and rebroadcast it on their own VHF system.

No plans have been announced for Borough conversion to UHF; however, officials point out it could now he done with minimal expense involving only walkie-talkies and patrol car equipment, since base station and tower are already there.

Negotiations to move the tower from Township to Borough began in 1977 and were completed in October of that year, although the Township had to appear twice before the Borough Zoning Board for a use variance because the original permit expired.

Council was divided 3-3 on whether to grant permission. Mayor Robert W. Cawley broke the tie and opened the way for the tower to be moved. It has taken more than 18 months because of weather and delays in obtaining the radio equipment become a thoroughfare linking State Road and Route 27.

In rejecting the two lots fronting on Mt. Lucas, the board said it believed that one of the lots had slopes too steep for the detention basins that are required to hold water runoff and would not be an adequate buffer for the residential area nearby.

The board turned over to its Circulation Subcommittee the problems faced by developer Benedict Yedlin regarding the state's suggested route for a 92-A by-pass.

SCHOOL BUSING?

Cost: $18,995.94. If you live in a part of town where it's hazardous to walk to school, the Township will drive your child to school by bus. Last year, it cost the Township $18,995.94, which is almost $19,000 more than the Township would like to pay. The school board does not pick up any of this cost, nor does the state.

The hazardous-busing question will come before Township Committee this Wednesday (8 p.m., Township Hall) as it does annually at this time, because Committee would like its young passengers to get to school by other means.

Bike paths have been regarded as the ideal solution, and paths on Elm Road, The Great Road and Rosedale were eventually to put the hazardous bus route out of business. But nobody expects the Rosedale Road path to be done until next spring at least, so it looks as though the Township will have to pay the bill again. Johnson Park, on Rosedale, is the chief school involved.

After the Rosedale bike path has been built, warned Administrator Joseph R. Nini this week, the Township will "take a real hard look" at hazardous busing.

Committee will hear a report from Mayor Josie Hall on a deer repellent called Thiram.

An ordinance will be introduced appropriating an additional $7,000 for Community Park swimming pool work, chiefly for the installation of a new filter system. An original appropriation of $35,000 was earmarked for lavatory, storage and work areas, furniture, racing lanes and new coping stones for the 13-year-old pool system.

In work session, Committee will again talk about buying the eight-acre Van Dyke Wight property on Snowden Lane. The cost is now $10,000 an acre. There are no Green Acres funds available.

Committee will also discuss Police Chief Fred Porter's desire for an anti-loitering ordinance. The focus is the Dairy Queen area of the Shopping Center where consumers of Dairy Queen often toss used receptacles and obstruct traffic. Chief Porter has in mind an ordinance similar to Lawrence Township's, which has been upheld in the courts.

PRINCIPAL CHOSEN

For Princeton High. After a two-hour executive session, the school board Tuesday night named John Sakala, principal of Rockport High School, Rockport, Mass. as the new principal of Princeton High School. His salary – administrator's salaries are currently in negotiation – is $36,620 and he will start work August 1.

The vote was 6-2, Winthrop Pike and Ardis Phillips voting "no" and Dale Madden absent. Superintendent Paul Houston said the two-hour closed-door discussion was necessary because the board was "very high" on the two finalists and a final decision had been difficult.

In other action, the board voted, 5-3, on a controversial personnel matter adjusting the contract of David Myers, Director of Secondary Education, from $29, 740 to $32,680. Dr. Houston and board member Hannah Fox explained that the adjustment was implicit in the board's April action changing Mr. Myers' title from Director of Secondary Instruction.

Board member Rosalind Frisch protested that "wasn't on the table" when the job title was changed and that Mr. Myers took over the salary of a retired assistant principal. Robin Wallack and Joseph Moore agreed with her and voted "no." Dr. Houston said the arithmetic of salaries for the shift in principals and appointment of directors of secondary and elementary education has been explained publicly and other board members apparently agreed. The salary change is effective only from May 1. Like other administrators' salaries it is in negotiation.

The new principal received his B.A. in 1960 from Brandeis in anthropology and sociology, holds and M.S. in natural sciences (1966) from Worcester Polytechnic Institute in Worcester, Mass. and a Certificate of Advanced Graduate Studies (1976) from Northeastern Unviversity, Boston. He has also done graduate work in mathematics at Boston College.

Before his Rockport appointment, Mr. Sakala was principal of the Homebase School in Watertown, Mass. He taught physics and mathematics for 10 years in Watertown public schools, and served as co-ordinator of science for the school district.

The 92 applicants for the Princeton High post were screened against a list of criteria developed by the high school staff, the Princeton community and the school board. From the 92, 11 were chosen for interviews by an Appointments Advisory Committee. Dr. Houston and Mrs. Wallack had high praise for the quality of their work.

STATE AID TO BE SOUGHT

For Renovation of Gym. Borough Council voted unanimously last Tuesday night to apply for a state grant for $22,110 to renovate the gym behind Borough hall for use by the Senior Citizens Club and other residents.

E. Harvey Myers, the architect who came forward at Freeholder Barbara Sigmun's request to help resolve the dilemma of conflicting cost estimates for the renovation, presented Council with a two-phase project as a method to control costs. Phase I, which Mr. Myers estimates will cost $29,500 is designed to make the building habitable and to meet code requirements and insure a certificate of occupancy.

To this end Mr. Myers itemizes a new roof, heating and electrical work for the kitchen wing, reactivating existing heating units in the gym area, toilets, the creation of a kitchen space and partitioning off the stage area for future use as a smaller meeting room and/or office space.

Phase II comes to $35,000, Mr. Myers estimates, and will be accomplished from funds left over from Phase I, plus monies from additional sources.

This will include additional "creature comforts" with a priority on reducing overall operating costs – insulation in the roof, for example, – and making the building as energy efficient as possible. The suspended ceiling the seniors have requested may be a part of Phase II, and Mr. Myers has also suggested reducing the window area on the rear of the building to cut heat loss.

Neighbors living behind the gym on Boudinot Street raised questions about noise and night time use of the building. John McCullough of 30 Boudinot Street suggested that Council define in writing the other uses the building may be put to, and Mayor Cawley agreed to attempt to do so.

Jay Vawter, 12 Boudinot, expressed concern that Mr. Myers' estimate was so much less that a $65,000 estimate made for the Recreation Department six years ago, and which might well have doubled in the interim with inflation.

"I would hope that the senior citizens would come up with something nice," Mr. Vawter said "This proposal seems to get them in the door but not much more than that."

Kate Litvak replied that the recreation project had been an elaborate and extensive one.

Henry Jones of Carpenter Local 781 got a round of applause when he told Council: "We will give you all the carpenter labor you need free for that building."

Sage of Chicken Little

If anything's going to Fall down out of space,
I'd rather have raindrops
Caressing my face.

There are many people who would love to know just when and where Skylab is going to fall so they could gather all the weather forecasters who predicted a sunny Fourth of July last week, and put them on that spot.

This week, showers are a definite possibility for early Wednesday, with the day getting better as it goes along. Thursday and Friday should be partly to mostly sunny with temperatures in the 80's. The weekend weather is anybody's guess, certainly a repeat of last weekend's would be fine.

Princeton's New Health Officer Begins Duties

Like his predecessor David Blake, Princeton's new health officer Patrick O. Hansen is the son of a health officer.

John J. Hanson was health officer in New Brunswick for 27 years and young Patrick is New Brunswick born and bred. Central New Jersey has, in fact, been the focus of his life except for college years in Florida. He now commutes from Milltown, where he lives with his wife and daughters Meghan, five, and Maureen, three and a half.

Although he started formally as Princeton's health officer when Mr. Blake's retirement became effective July 1, Pat Hanson had been working with Dave Blake since June 25, "getting my feet wet."

The New Jersey focus means that Pat knows state health laws. The central New Jersey focus means he knows the area, although he says with a smile, that so far as Princeton is concerned, "I'm a carpetbagger."

For five and a half years, he was with the Middlesex County Health Department, moving from there to Hazlet, a town facing the health problems of a community which had grown from 3,000 to some 24,000 in just a few years. The young inspector, for example, had the responsibility of inspecting nine mobil-home parks with a total of 900 units. He held the Hazlet post from January, 1975, untit he came to Princeton this summer.

The new health officer majored in American history as a student at Biscayne College, a small Catholic liberal arts college in Florida. After graduation in 1969, he became a trainee with Middlesex County.

At the same time, he began night classes at Rutgers, receiving his sanitary inspector's license in 1970 and his health officer's license in 1974. He now holds a master's degree in health care administration from Jersey City State College.

NEW MAN ON THE JOB: Patrick O. Hanson, Princeton's new health officer goes over the record with Health Department Registrar Ethel Leese in their Borough Hall office.

As he talks about his background, he laments the lack in New Jersey of a school of public health. He believes it is a serious almost unforgivable omission in a state as populous as New Jersey.

Already he has begun his Princeton job. He has conferred with Edith Umbrecht of the Medical Center staff about community nursing and with Dr. Gilbert A. Falcone about dental care for the indigent. He will meet next Tuesday with the Health Commission to get their ideas and to give them his own.

In Hazlet, for example, there was a monthly immunization clinic. Is this needed, in Princeton? What about a monthly child-health clinic?

He is used to an active citizens board of health and he is eager to work with Princeton's Health Commission to establish whatever services are needed.

A dedicated professional, Pat Hanson spends leisure hours reading professional journals "or anything related to public health," and he has just completed a continuing-education course in his field.

He is active in the New Jersey Health Officers Association, serving as chairman of its membership committee, and was president of the Monmouth County Health Officers Association, serving as chairman of its membership committee, and was president of the Monmouth County Health Officers Association for two years.

But he jogs and swims, too, and wishes he had time for more of both.

LOGAN IS INDICTED

For Rachael Bull Murder. David A. Logan, 26, of South Amboy, was indicted last week in Trenton for the June 15 electrocution death of 18-year old Rachael Bull of 294 Mount Lucas Road. No trial date has been set.

Logan was also indicted for his alleged attempt to murder an East Windsor woman in her early 20's in 1977. The indictment charges in that case are assault with intent to kill, breaking and entering with intent to commit battery and atrocious assault and battery.

First Assistant Prosecutor Robert A. Farkas did not release any new details about Miss Bull's death. She was found by police tied to her bed with small burn marks on both sides of her body. An autopsy revealed that she had died of electrocution when Logan allegedly touched her with the frayed ends of a live lamp cord.

The East Windsor victim suffered slight injuries but was able to thwart her attacker. Logan allegedly climbed through an open window to enter her Northgate Apartment on the Princeton-Hightstown Road.

FOOD INSPECTIONS

Hospital, Grotto Cited. Princeton Hospital voluntarily destroyed seven food containers following a May 14 inspection of food storage and preparation areas by state health inspectors.

At the time of the inspection, hospital staff destroyed severely dented cans of peaches, peppers, baked beans and chocolate pudding.

State inspectors later gave the Medical Center a "Satisfactory" rating.

The Grotto Restaurant, 18 Witherspoon, received a letter July 5 from Princeton's health department warning of re-inspection on or after next Tuesday to see whether violations have been corrected.

Food inspectors counted 96 violations in a June 14 visit to the restaurant. On a July 3 re-inspection, 51 were still uncorrected, prompting the letter from health officer Patrick O. Hanson.

If the Grotto has not corrected the violations by the forthcoming inspection, its owners must appear for a formal public hearing at the health department with an explanation.

The NOW Day Nursery is also the recipient of a warning letter from the state. The letter, dated June 8, followed a June 5 inspection and was signed by John Yaroslavski, project coordinator for the state's food and milk program.

In other early summer inspections, the Snack Bar at Community Park Pool received "Satisfactory" (the highest rating), as did Cafe au Lait, 66 Witherspoon; Charles W. Robinson Post 218, American Legion, 26 Lytle; Conte's, 339 Witherspoon; P.J.'s Pancake House, 154 Nassau; Princeton Gourmet, Nassau at Harrison; The Princeton House Division of the Medical Center; Watt's General Store, State Road and Tony's Place, 258 Nassau.

The following "Conditional" ratings were removed and replaced with "Satisfactory" after re-inspection: Pretty Brook Tennis Club, Pretty

$900 TV IS STOLEN

From Battle Road Home. A 21-inch color television set valued at $902.95 was stolen recently from a Battle Road home. A screen and window of a kitchen door were broken to gain entry, police said.

A rifle cabinet was also entered and police report that it is possible that some shotguns and rifles are missing.

Two cameras and miscellaneous items with a combined value of $290 were stolen last week from a Devereux Avenue home which was entered between 8:55 p.m. and 11:40 p.m. through an unlocked window.

A door to a trailer at a construction site on Mt. Lucas Road was pried open last week and the trailer ransacked.

It appears, said Township police, that nothing was taken with the exception of 100 feet of white nylon rope valued at $50. The victim is King of Prussia contractor Irwin Leighton, Inc.

In the Borough, a Prospect Avenue home was entered between 10:45 and 11:15 Monday evening -- just after the occupants had returned home.

Numerous credit cards and $169 was taken from a wallet that had been left on a kitchen chair. The wallet was valued at $42. Police report the thief entered through an unlocked front door.

A student at the Graduate College lost $45 last week when someone entered his room through an unlocked window and rifled his wallet while he was taking a shower.

An intruder walked into an unlocked home on Wiggins Street last week and removed a black leather purse. Inside was $20 and a $20 watch. The purse was valued at $25.

Resist That Urge

Juveniles caught swimming after hours in swimming club pools in the area will be prosecuted by the police, Chief Frederick Porter warned this week.

Two 17-year old youths and an 18-year old, all Princeton residents, were apprehended last week swimming in the Broadmead pool. Prior to that, some youths were seen trying to climb over the fence surrounding the Nassau Swim Club pool off Springdale Road but they drove off when they realized they had been observed.

Chief Porter added that there have been problems with intruders at Community Park pool and that police have received complaints from swimming clubs in the area of trespassing and malicious damage to pools.

Police will be patrolling the pools, Chief Porter said. "Anyone apprehended will be prosecuted."

POLITICS

Borough Mayoralty. Robert McChesney, Democratic challenger of Republican Robert W. Cawley for the Borough mayoralty, charged this week that the Borough had been "careless, inept and wasteful" in its handling of the Quarry Park development and Mayor Cawley said it had indeed taken longer than he had hoped.

"The Borough has been sitting on $65,000 of development money for the last 10 months," Mr. McChesney said, "and when bids were opened June 27, only one contractor in 10 had submitted a bid and that was double the estimate."

"We have an over-worked engineering department whose chief priority is the inflow-infiltration sewer study," Mayor Cawley said, "and with that heavily-loaded department, it all took longer than Nelson and I had hoped. We were very disappointed that bids were so high."

Nelson van den Blink is the Council member with the public works portfolio. Like Mr. McChesney, she is a democrat.

Delay means the $65,000 may not be enough, Mr. McChesney said. Mayor Cawley suggested that contractors might be allowed to work under their own flexible time-table, as a way of saving money.

POWER TOOLS STOLEN

Valued at $600 to $750. An electric drill, electric hammer and electric knockout set, valued at $600 to $750, were reported stolen Monday from a construction site at 160 Nassau Street.

Police said that a lock had been cut off a construction box next to the site. They identified the victim as the Eagle Electric Construction Co. of Bridgewater.

An unlocked girl's 10-speed bicycle valued at $150 was taken from the yard of a Pine Street resident on Monday, and a tree branch was inserted through an open rear window to unlock a door of a car parked Sunday in the YMCA lot. The victim, a Freehold resident, told police $160 had been taken from her pocketbook.

A Princeton University employee lost $30 when someone rifled her unattended pocketbook in a Dickinson Hall office and stole her wallet.

The same day -- Friday -- a Levittown, Pa. resident lost $16 when a thief rifled her purse while she was visiting the Princeton Inn Terrace.

During the weekend, someone removed a video tape player ($250) and a video tape camera ($150) from a Stockton Street office. There were no signs of forced entry.

There were two thefts involving parked cars last week on Lytle Street. A Witherspoon Street resident reported that an AM-FM stereo radio valued at $300 and a $50 cassette tape player were removed from his car which was broken into during the night and a Township resident listed the theft of a rear seat radio speaker from his car which was also forced open.

A mirror, headlight and pair of leather saddle bags -- total value $65 -- were unscrewed from a moped owned by Dr. Stanley Rosenberg while it was parked Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m. in the rack near Suite R of the Princeton Medical Group buildings off Witherspoon Street.

A Trenton resident told police a pair of handcuffs valued at $20 had been stolen from under a rag on the front floor of her car while it was parked last week in the Princeton Medical Center garage. The car was not locked.

A Princeton resident lost $85 when his wallet was stolen from an unlocked locker Thursday afternoon at the

There was an attempt to enter the coke machine at the U-Wash in the Princeton Shopping Center at 1:43 a.m. on the Fourth but the thieves were apparently frightened off at the approach of a patrol car.

A lock to the machine had been sawed or broken off and the door pried open, but no money was taken. Police were alerted when an alarm sounded at headquarters.

FIRECRACKERS?

Township, Yes; Borough, No. Firecrackers seemed to be more in abundance this year," noted Chief Frederick Porter, who reported Township police responding to complaints as recently as Sunday. "Fortunately," he added, "no one was injured.

Apparently, the opposite was true in the Borough where Chief Michael Carnevale reported police did not receive any calls.

"This indicates," he commented, "one, people are more tolerant than in the past or, two, there has been a reduction in the uae of firecrackers in the Borough."

Chief Carnevale did report one "unusual situation." Sometime during Thursday, someone atuffed a powerful M-80 firecracker through a letter slot of Princeton Historical Society's Bainbridge House on Nassau Street. It exploded in one of the rooms and did some damage to two paintings.

Township police, meanwhile, received a complaint of firecrackers going off on Dodds Lane Sunday near Route 27. Saturday night, a Ewing Street resident told police M-80s were being thrown into his yard from Linden Lane. There was another report of firecrackers on Rosedale Lane.

Lt. Anthony Pinelli apprehended nine juveniles Friday with firecrackers on a Princeton High School playing field. The firecrackers were confiscated and the youths sent on their way.

On the Fourth, between 10:40 and 11:30 the aame evening, Township police responded to complaints of firecrackers at Linden and Guyot, Carnahan Place, State Road and the Princeton Shopping Center where firecrackers were reportedly being thrown from moving cars.

Bike Auction Saturday

The Township police department will auction off 34 bicycles Saturday morning at 10 at Township Hall.

The bicycles may be inspected from 9 to 10. Some are in oeed of repair.

CYCLIST, 12, IS VICTIM

Of Shakedown. A 12-year old Princeton youth was walking her bicycle up Witherspoon Street Thursday afternoon when she was approached by a black girl, described by police as a "young adult" who asked her if she could borrow 50 cents or a dollar.

The young girl continued to walk her bicycle after she told her she had no money. Whereupon, police said, the solicitor grabbed her bike, slowing her, and proceeded to 'pad her down' to see if she had any money.

Police said the girl's accoster took $7 from a pant's pocket and then ran north on Witherspoon Street. Patrol cars searched the area without success.

The suspect was wearing dark pants and a red top, police said. She was about 5-3 or 5-4 in height.

WHO ARE YOU?

Stranger Flees Bedroom. "It was quite a scary thing," said Chief Frederick Porter, as he recounted the incident of a Heather Lane resident last week who woke up early in the morning to discover a man lying in her bed.

When she touched the intruder, described only as a short, chunky, light-skinned male, he crawled behind a chair. When she asked who he was, police said he fled through a first-floor bedroom window -- believed to be the one through which he entered the house. Police said he was nude from the waist up.

The victim was alone at the time. Ptl. Peter Savalli responded when her father called at 3 a.m.

Borough Det. Timothy Huizing with the larceny of approximately $800 from Larry's Sunoco on October 21, 1977.

At the time, police said, Schilling was an attendant at the Nassau Street Service station. He told police then he had been assaulted and robbed. The continuing investigation by Det. Huizing led to the charge, according to Chief Michael Carnevale.

Schilling is currently in Somerset County Jail and Borough police have placed a detainer for his arrest.

Richard Schlough, 25, of Bangar, Pa., was issued a complaint summons Saturday for begging money on the Princeton University campus -- a violation of a Borough ordinance.

Schlough was apprehended by University Security near Murray-Dodge Hall and taken into custody. He is scheduled to appear in court here August 15.

DUMP TRUCK OVERTURNS

Skids Into Patrol Car. A dump truck went off Stockton Street last week, overturned and skidded into a parked Township patrol car.

The driver, Jeffrey P. Kerschner, 19, of Mercerville, was ticketed by Ptl. Anthony Gaylord for careless driving. He was treated at Princeton Medical Center for lacerations of the head.

Mr. Kerschner told police his brakes had failed as he approached the Elm Road light. He added he could not stop and his truck ran off the roadway and overturned.

Ptl. Gaylord in his report noted the truck left 165 feet of skid marks before leaving the roadway -- revealing its brakes were working -- and that it continued another 281 feet. It skidded across the roadway after overturning into the side of the patrol car. Ptl. Gaylord had parked off the roadway to assist a motorcycle rider.

The side of the patrol car was damaged but Ptl. Gaylord was able to drive away from the scene. The dump truck was a total loss.

Thursday morning at 8:35, Richard W. Hoisington of 371 Ridgeview Road, collided with a doe when it ran in front of his motorcycle on Ridgeview near Cherry Hill Road.

Mr. Hoisington waa thrown over the handlebars and had to be treated at the Medical Center for a fractured shoulder. The deer had to be destroyed. Ptl. Robert Nielsen investigated.

I.O.U. 25 Cents

Two Township residents were over-charged when they bought duplicate dog licenses and formal action by Township Committee is required by law so that each dog owner can get back the 25 cents owed from the municipal till.

It happened because one of the senior members of the Township staff issued the duplicates when a junior member of the staff, more experienced in these matters, was on vacation. The employee discovered the error when she came back to work.

The dog owners never knew.

AN HONEST PERSON

... and a Dishonest One. "An honest person -- the number seems to be diminishing," commented Chief Michael Carnevale -- turned in a wallet containing $28 he had found on Monday to Ptl. Peter Hanley on foot patrol at Witherspoon and Nassau Streets.

Police identified the Good Samaritan as Michael A. Michael of England. The wallet was later turned over to its owner, a Bridgewater resident.

"On the other side of the coin," said Chief Carnevale, is the Princeton resident who had his wallet stolen the same day while he was playing tennis at the Princeton High School courts. The victim later found it but it was missing the $25 it had contained.

SUN ROOF DAMAGED

By Vandals. The sun roof of a small foreign car owned by a Hickory Court resident was pushed in last week and the right side damaged by vandals.

The victim's mother and daughter told police they had heard noises about 10:30 Saturday night but had disregarded them. The victim noticed the damage when he returned home Sunday.

Police said that some clay bricks on the side of the house were also smashed but no entry attempt had been made.

After being away a few days, a Hartley Avenue resident upon his return home last week discovered that someone had thrown a large rock through a four-foot by 18-inch window on the side of his garage.

A MAN'S BEST FRIEND

But Not a Car's. Police called it an "unusual complaint."

A Princeton resident aaid Saturday that two large Golden Retrievers running loose had jumped on her new car, scratching the paint on the side, as she was driving slowly on Palmer Square East.

Ptl. John Redding and Ptl. Victor Fasanella responded but were unable to locate the dogs. Police theorize the dogs may have mistaken the car for that of their owner.

PRINCETON NOT CLOSE

To Building Sewage Plant. Princeton is not quite as close to being the first municipality in the nation to build a solar-powered sewage plant as the leading New York newspaper and national radio network coverage would make it seem.

All that has happened is that the Environmental Commission passed a resolution at its June 19 meeting recommending that the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority finance a feasibility study of a proposal by the Solar Energy Group for a solar assisted sludge and energy recycling disposal system using the old Princeton sewage treatment plant and incineration facilities.

The resolution was sent to Borough Council and Township Committee and is the first order of business on the Township Committee's agenda for Wednesday night. It may also be discussed at the next meeting of the Stony Brook Sewerage Authority on July 24.

The proposal, which was described in detail in the May 23 issue of TOWN TOPICS, involves converting the old sewage treatment plant into a solar assisted facility for drying sewage sludge from the Stony Brook plant and upgrading the old incinerator plant as a boiler in which to burn the sludge mixed with garbage. The resulting steam could be harnassed to a generator to produce electricity for the Stony Brook plant and could provide waste heat to assist in the sludge drying.

Solar Energy Group, of which Steve Slaby, associate professor of civil engineering at Princeton University, is one of the principals, estimated in its presentation before the Environmental Commission that the capital costs would be close to $9 million. Solar Energy Group also estimates that the savings in landfill charges, transportation costs and indirect sewage tax reductions could be as much as $365,000 based on this year's energy costs and $498,000, based on 1985 projected figures.

Mr. Slaby, who was interviewed on CBS radio, says he "has no idea" how UPI got hold of the story that appeared in the New York Times this week in a "garbled" fashion. However, he does not sound entirely displeased by the publicity, for he realizes his proposal will have to go over a lot of "conceptual hurdles as well as political ones" and he is glad that "people are discussing it and that it is an issue that the town is looking at."

Meanwhile, Borough engineer George Olexa reports that the Sewer Operating Committee, which had planned to dismantle the old sewer plant, has now

You Can Re-cycle Again

The re-cycling shed in the corner of the Princeton Shopping Center has itself been re-cycled and is now re-open.

The shed was closed briefly because the collector had been caught in the gas shortage and was unable to make the trips to Princeton to pick up re-cyclables. In spite of newspaper notices and bulletins fastened to the closed doors of the shed, people left re-cyclables anyway.

Now it can be done legitimately.

Soap Box Derby Makes Successful Debut Here

TENSE MOMENT: George Hahn gets a last minute word of advice and encouragement from his father before the final heat of the Great Road Race in which he placed first. After re-painting his car to read "Mercer," he will go on to compete in the nationals in Akron, Ohio, as New Jersey's representative.

The new portion of the Great Road was the scene last Saturday of Princeton's first nationally sanctioned soap box derby. Judging from the reaction of contestants, organizers and spectators, the event was so successful that it will be expanded and become an annual affair.

Twelve-year-old George Hahn of Mercerville steered his homemade gravity-propelled racing car to a first place victory in a field of 23 contestants. In addition to a $150 dirt bike, he won the opportunity to compete in the nationals in Akron, Ohio. With his father and the car in which he won this race, he will spend a week in Akron attending clinics and demonstrations on the art of soap box racing and will represent Mercer County in the big race.

Johnny Kukon of Trenton, whose car sported the logo and the racing stripes of Nassau Hobby Center as his sponsor, placed second, and Trip Blaicher of Princeton Junction was third. All three boys are sons of the founders of the Mercer County Soap Box Derby Association that organized the race.

Fritz Blaicher, George Hahn, John Kukon and John Strahle of Cranbury, whose son Chris placed sixth, got talking about a New Jersey sanctioned race after taking their sons to a race in Lower Bucks County last year. They banded together as the Mercer County Soap Box Derby Association last October and began formulating plans for the race.

The first problem was to find the $375 franchise and insurance fee to become nationally sanctioned. The four men approached a number of businesses in the area, none of which were interested. Finally they turned to the West Windsor PBA which paid the entire sum.

They set up a booth at Quakerbridge Mall at Christmas to enlist contestants. Ten racers are needed for a race to be considered sanctioned, and 18 signed up.

Craftsmanship a Factor. A soap box derby combines craftsmanship and sportsmanship and involves close partnership between parent and child, as each contestant must build the vehicle in which he or she will later compete. In the junior division (ages 10 to 12) which this race limited itself to in its first year, each racer obtains a racing kit for $51 from the national headquarters in Akron. The kit includes the working parts of the car, including the axle, steering mechanism and cables.

There is also a 30-page manual which describes in detail how to put the mechanical portions together and how to cut out and fit the wooden pieces that form the floorboard, sides and top. The manual lists nine different designs, but all 23 contestants in Saturday's race had elected to follow one particular design which seemed to give the least wind resistance.

The four organizers held seven clinics between January and June in the Princeton Junction firehouse to aid and abet the construction work in progress and to make sure it was conforming to standards. Each car must not be more than 80 inches long, nor less than 14½ inches high and 13 inches wide. The combined weight of car and driver can be no more than 220 pounds, and lead weights are strategically placed to bring the weight up to the maximum.

Mr. Blaicher says it takes about $150, including the kit and materials, to build the car. If a family does not possess the necessary hand-tools the cost can go as high as $300. Each driver must also find a sponsor who will put up $50 to go for helmets, trophies, prizes and the banquet.

Skill of the Driver. After a final inspection in June, the cars were impounded in the Bonthron's barn on the Great Road until the day of the race.

Mr. Blaicher estimates that 60 per cent of winning is in the driver's skill and 40 per cent in the preparation of the car – making sure, for instance, that the axles are both mounted on the center line, something that was stressed during the clinics.

The driver must keep his or her head well down and do the least amount of steering which will have to be compensated for and in turn reduce speed. An experienced driver learns how to judge the road and becomes instinctively familiar with playing off the crown and just when and where the coefficient of friction is less.

The new portion of the Great Road proved to be an ideal

PROPER RACING FORM: Trip Blaicher of Princeton Junction has his head well down as he takes off from the starting ramp in last Saturday's soap box derby run on a section of the Great Road. Trip, whose father Fritz Blaicher wes derby director, came in third out of 23 conteatants, boys and girls, in Princeton's first derby.

Soap Box Derby

spot for a soap box derby race. The road was divided into two lanes and a starting ramp with simultaneous release levers placed so that each car was headed for the center of the lane. After each car and driver was weighed in, each contestant drew for a lane and a set of matched wheels provided by the association. Then both cars switched one pair of wheels, another effort at ensuring an equal chance for each contestant.

After two cars raced against each other, the winner went on to the next bracket, and the loser dropped into the consolation category. Two losses eliminated a racer from the competition. Young Hahn and Kukon actually raced each other twice for the championship, because when they first met in the finals and Kukon won, each had only lost one race the whole afternoon. They raced again, and this time Hahn won, giving Kukon two losses to Hahn's single loss.

Other Winners. Other winners were Gene Rogers of Princeton Junction who placed fourth, Richard Green of Trenton, fifth, and Chris Strahle of Cranbury, who placed sixth. Young Strahle took the only spill of the afternoon when, after his last run, crossing the finish line he bumped into a pylon marking the edge of the lane and crashed into the bales of hay placed alongside the route. He was not hurt, and his car suffered only minor damage.

Other Princeton area participants were Wendy Doyle, Leslie Elmore, Adrian Finzi, Dave Precheur, Scott Swartz, Bob Sheehan and Liz White, all of Princeton; Jay Kavanaugh, Lauren Kostue, Robert Strahle, all of Princeton Junction, and Jody Paixao from Lawrenceville. Each contestant was given a trophy, a t-shirt, helmet and two color polaroid pictures of his finish, one for himself and one for his sponsor.

Mr. Blaicher paid special tribute to the New Jersey Street Rod Association which brought eight pick-up trucks and transported the cars from the finish line at Stuart Road back around the "old" Great Road to the starting ramps for the next heat. "Without them we could not have had the race," he said.

Also singled out for their cooperation were Princeton Township Mayor, Committee and police, Princeton Day School, and the Mercer County Road Department which provided snow fencing.

Next year, Mr. Blaicher says, the Mercer County Soap Box Derby Association plans to hold a senior division race for ages 12-15 in which contestants design as well as build their own cars, and an uncle's program for fatherless children or children who can not afford the outlay for the kit and materials.

ITEMS SOUGHT

For Blairstown Potpourri. Those shoes you bought on sale but wore only once, Book of the Month selections no longer wanted, and the duplicate blender received as a Christmas gift -- all can find new homes through the Blairstown Potpourri. What is donated now will be sold at the annual Potpourri on Saturday, September 22, to benefit the Princeton Education Center at Blairstown.

This year, the tables at Jadwin Gym will offer arts and crafts, books, plants, baked goods and barbecued chicken, games and toys for children, a raffle, a country store, and a flea market. Raffle prizes include a $500 trip certificate from Kuller Travel, a 10-speed bike, a CB radio, and a Polaroid Sonar camera.

Profits from the Potpourri will help renovate and winterize the facilities of the Princeton Education Center. The Center covers 180 acres in northwestern New Jersey, near the wilderness and beauty of the Delaware Water Gap and the Appalachian Trail. Each summer, inner city and suburban children are brought to the Center for canoeing, hiking, climbing, and other outdoor skills that develop self-confidence, responsibility, individuality, and leadership.

The Center also serves as a retreat for the University community, local schools, youth organizations, and churches. Several University offices, for example, have brought their staffs to the relaxed atmosphere of Blairstown for planning sessions and development workshops.

Alternative energy and conservation programs will be offered in future, with the buildings providing teaching tools. Renovations are adapting the buildings to the natural environment, using exterior walls and windows that open and shut in response to sun and climate. Southern exposure and focusing roof apertures will collect solar energy for storage in concrete walls or containerized water.

Over 80 per cent of the heating for new buildings at the Center will be supplied by these energy-saving methods. A 12 kw hydro-generator and a 6 kw Sailwing windmill will provide most of the lighting, and hot water will be available from active liquid solar collector systems.

Although closely affiliated with Princeton University, the Center is a separate corporation and must raise its own funds. The Blairstown Potpourri was organized in 1975 by office and library staffs at the University to raise $50,000 for rebuilding. To date $23,000 has been raised -- $5,000 from last year's Potpourri.

To contribute articles for the fall sale, bring them to room 53 of the Armory, just off Washington Road. Hours are Monday and Wednesday, 4:30-6:30 p.m. Special arrangements can be made for other days and hours. A box in the main entrance of Firestone Library can take books only.

Unique European Dessert Menu at Cafe au Lait Makes Indecision Customer's Only Problem

"ISN'T THIS THE PLACE WHERE I DRINK THE COFFEE BLACK?" That's what one customer said to his wife at Cafe au Lait the other evening. Karla Jones brews it all in this machine. She bakes in the adjoining kitchen, using 100 pounds each of sugar and flour each week, 30 dozen eggs, 25 pounds of cream cheese, 30 pounds of shortening and butter. Nobody has tallied the calories.

The road to perdition might start at the chocolate cheesecake framboise, laced with raspberry brandy, proceeding to the next milestone -- a piece of Bohemian coffee cake made with sour cream and studded with walnuts under a thick dusting of cinnamon, with the fresh blueberry cobbler just around the next bend and who knows where it wilt all end?

We haven't even gotten to the coffee.

Cafe au Lait is that new place at 66 Witherspoon on the second floor over the gas station -- owner Karla Jones sometimes winces at that, but has gallantly come to feel it's the best location ever. Since she opens at 3 p.m., most of her customers come after dinner or the theatre when there's plenty of parking and all of it free. And evenings on her little balcony . . .

We'll get to the coffee in a minute.

Cafe au Lait is strictly for dessert and coffee (or tea), its Central European ancestry reflected in that Bohemian coffee cake, the Slovak cookies made by Karla's mother from an old family recipe, and the home-like formal parlor where you sit at tiny tables for two.

BUSINESS In Princeton

Espresso and cappuccino are made espressly (sorry) for you on an Italian machine, (see photo) whose splendor outshines even the cheesecake framboise. Or, you may have regular or de-caffeinated coffee.

Because the coffee is steamed just for you, service at Cafe au Lait is relaxed -- as it should be at any fine cafe. If you're in a rush, Karla will sell the coffee "to go," but it's pleasanter to sip and drink right there.

"La Machine." Your three-ounce classic white espresso cup contains coffee made from a French roast ground especially for Cafe au Lait and chosen after Karla tested 17 different brands. Her machine -- "la machine," she says fondly -- brews it so that it retains the oils that give true espresso its body.

Your eight-ounce glass cup of Cappuccino contains half-and-half, French roast coffee and just a touch of cinnamon, all steamed together. Your cafe au lait has lots of milk and a little coffee, also steamed together before serving.

Karla learned from the experts who showed her how to use "la machine" that coffee brewed in this way has only five percent of the caffeine in standard coffee. Drink away . . .

If it's a hot night, you might ask for iced strawberry tea with the natural strawberry oils right there in the glass; orange tea, to which you might add a smooth spoonful of honey, lemon tea, spearmint, or the traditional blends, like Earl Grey.

But let's get back to the desserts.

Everything is baked at the cafe by Karla or her mother, helped by a waitress newly promoted to peeling apples and learning the art. The apples, incidentally, go into an apple pie made without sugar, without honey, without sweetening of any kind -- just naturally sweet apples, walnuts and raisins in a light double crust.

"Absolutely gooey," is Karla's description of "our fudgiest brownies." So gooey they must firm up in the freezer before they can be removed from the pan.

Offerings Varied. There is a menu, but Karla likes to vary the offerings so you won't be bored. One week, cheesecake du jour could be butter pecan, pumpkin, honey-raisin or plain. Next week's spiked pie might be a chilled Vandermint.

You can peer at the cakes and pies in the nice old fashioned sideboard in the main room and decide -- if you can -- which is most tempting.

Karla came into the restaurant business by a natural route. She taught foods and nutrition for five years in a Pennsylvania high school and for two years in Edison, N.J. Then she moved to part-time catering for cocktail parties and, since she had prowled the sidewalk cafes of Czechoslovakia, Greece, Germany, Italy and the middle East -- "I ate them out" she laughs. Cafe au Lait was a natural.

What brought this Edison native to Princeton?

"Why, I've come here since I was little! Sunday dinner at the Nass, stuffing myself on pancakes at P.J.'s, buying my shoes at Hulit's, my boy cousins went to the University . . ."

"But I had a hard time finding a place. All the landlords were so fearful of the Zoning Board, nobody would rent to me! They were afraid

JULY FORECAST: COOL

In New Jersey. Temperatures are expected to continue cooler than normal in New Jersey during July, with near-normal rainfall due in the state, according to agricultural meteorologist Anthony Broccoli of Rutgers University's Cook College.

"The forecast issued by the Long-Range Prediction Group of the National Weather Service in Washington, D.C., represents a continuation of the cool temperature pattern which has prevailed in New Jersey during the last few months," said Mr. Broccoli. Normal afternoon high temperatures for the state range from the low 80's in northern counties to the upper 80's in South Jersey, while normal overnight lows are in the upper 50's in northern areas and the mid 60's in the extreme south.

Rainfall in July averages about an inch weekly across New Jersey, but isn't generally well distrubuted, Mr. Broccoli said. "Farmers and home gardeners in New Jersey can expect frequent spells of dry soil conditions during July," he advised, "with central and southern counties experiencing an average of between 10 and 15 days with soil moisture below 50 per cent of field capacity."

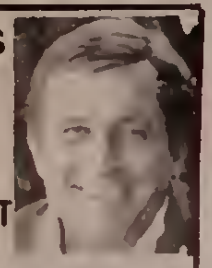
LET'S TALK ABOUT



BAD YEAR FOR DOGWOODS

with Sam deTuro
Woodwinds Associates

All up and down the East Coast this year, Dogwoods have been in serious trouble. The main problem has been a variety of leaf-spotting fungi, and unfortunately controls recommended for this problem are not always effective

The weakening effects of the fungi have been intensified this year due to the particularly hard winters of 1977 and '78, and the severe cold spell of this past winter. In addition, the very cold, wet spring this year has created ideal conditions for these fungi to develop. The most successful treatment of the leaf-spotting fungi would include applications of a fungicide (Fore, maneb, Benlate or sineb) once a month through late summer.

Along with the fungus, some homeowners are also noting dieback of branches. This is another fungus-caused problem, which can sometimes be mistaken for borer damage Any branches exhibiting this problem should be pruned out and destroyed.

The third problem facing weakened Dogwoods is borer attack. There are at least seven kinds of borers which attack Dogwoods, but the most serious are the flat-headed borer and the Dogwood borer Some control can be achieved by painting the trunks of Dogwoods with methoxychlor three times at 20-day intervals, starting in late May If the holes made by the borer is visible, Bore-kil can be inserted in these holes

The most important thing to remember about any disease or insect which attacks woody plants is that whenever the photosysthesis process is interfered with, the tree's vigor must be restored and maintained The best possible way to achieve this is to hydrochemically feed the tree or plant on a regular basis This way it can fight against the invasions of insects and diseases

Please note Should you have any questions on this column, or, for that matter, any concerns you may have concerning your valuable trees and shrubs, please feel free to call WOODWINDS at 924-3500 We're happy to answer any question

Square Expansion

the library lot, backed by a three-level garage (half a level below grade), with a five-story garage across Spring on Tulane, and a four-level garage on Chambers South for a total of 859 spaces.

Although Venturi and Rauch see this plan as offering a better distribution of parking and providing a more "gracious" site for PCH, Ann McGoldrick of Vandeventer declared the alternative "totally unacceptable . . . it cannot be borne. We cannot absorb the traffic and remain a viable neighborhood."

The consultants conceded "additional congestion" on Spring and said it could be even worse than traffic there now.

Alternative Omega: This is the limited commercial growth plan that retains the Playhouse. PCH stays next to the Playhouse, the garage on the library lot has only two levels (one-half below grade) and there is a companion four-level garage across Spring. A four-level garage is also on Chambers South.

As Venturi and Rauch see it, Princeton does not, with this plan, become a special place to shop, and the Borough would receive less in tax revenues.

However, "Omega" caught the fancy of many in the audience and Planning Board chairman Margen Penick drew applause when she went to the Omega display board and suggested use of air-rights over the Playhouse, a five-story garage on Tulane and commercial uses in a library lot garage. "An upgraded Omega," she called it.

Later, Mrs. Penick urged investigation of a garage "that could be big" at the Dinky station for long-term use, and possible long-term parking behind the Nassau Club on Mercer Street. She said that "buses to Jadwin aren't the answer."

In discussions of fringe parking, University spokesman Eugene McPartland clarified the Jadwin offer: the University is willing, he said, to provide 400 long-term spaces at Jadwin – about two-thirds to three-fourths of the lot's total – for overflow parking. If the land had to be used, he said, the University would provide another "footprint" on University property outside the main campus.

It was Mr. McPartland's misfortune to use the term "racetrack" to describe the continuous rectangle of extended Palmer Square West turning to parallel Robeson, with an open access to Robeson, then continuing around Palmer Square East and South. PSI would like to use the Playhouse and its east lot as a kind of anchor in that rectangle with the Nassau Inn expansion at its center, surrounded by stores and offices. Retaining the Playhouse, he said, would spoil the aesthetic, but he had no comment on the petition to keep the theatre.

For PCH, Golda Gottlieb said any of the three plans would be acceptable. Mrs. McGoldrick said, in response to a question from Mrs. Gottlieb, that neighbors would be more sympathetic to housing for the elderly than to a PCH for young singles or married couples.

For PSI, Mr. McPartland said none of the plans was quite what PSI had in mind. The original 1,300 parking spaces was now between 800 and 859, for example.

Yota Switzgable, who lives in Greenholm, said merchants told her they did not like Alternative X, with all its parking in the west, away from stores. She suggested a garage on the site of Griggs Service Station.

Once long-term parkers are off the streets, Ms. Scott Brown said, shoppers will have more room.

For the Borough, Mayor Robert W. Cawley explained that the desire to have PCH in the Borough, and the arrangement between PCH and PSI for land, started the whole thing. Two economic factors, the problems of the business community and the Borough's desire for rateables, were vital, he said, adding:

"We want to try and enhance the CBD as a place to live and congregate, with a stress on housing. The Borough itself has no strong feelings about any of the three proposals, but the Borough is clearly not willing to take on all of Palmer Square's risk in this expansion."

More than stores are needed to draw people to Princeton. Mrs. Penick said, "I don't spend a whole day rushing from store to store – we need a mixed use."

Henry Arnold made a plea for "the embattled pedestrian," predicting fewer drivers in the next five years. "Can Princeton stand the disamenity much longer?" he asked.

Merchant Everett Garretson (Clayton's) saw "Omega" as "a disaster" and said if there is no additional parking, "the merchandising picture will go downhill – in fact, it already has."

His colleague, Eric Mihan of the English Shop, said he did not agree that expanding Palmer Square would help business, but Reeves Hicks of the Chamber of Commerce reminded the audience that the Chamber supports a garage.

Irv Urken urged a "balance between merchants and neighbors and a broad look at planning" and on that note, the evening ended.

aluminum has increased the value of the metal. Aluminum can be used again and again, each time saving about 95 percent of the energy required to make it from ore. In 1978 Reynolds recycling efforts conserved about one billion kilowatt hours of electricity.

The Reynolds van will be at the Princeton Shopping Center Tuesday from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. All-aluminum beverage cans and clean pie plates, foil, frozen food and dinner trays and dip, pudding and meat containers are all acceptable, as are aluminum siding, gutters, storm door and window frames, lawn furniture tubing and aluminum castings.

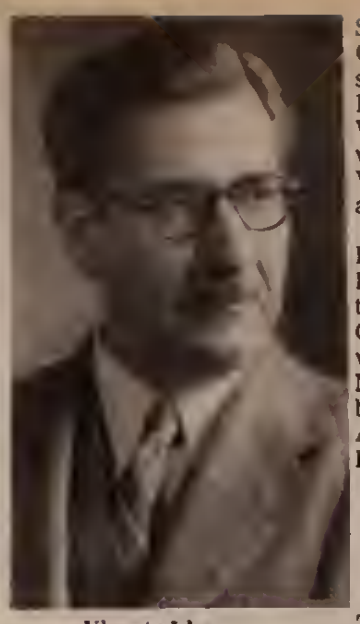
OBITUARIES

Viceote Llorens, professor of Romance languages and literatures, emeritus, at Princeton University, died July 5 in Valencia, Spain, after a brief illness. He was 73 and lived at 19 Glenview Drive.

A highly esteemed authority on modern Spanish literature, Prof. Llorens joined the Princeton faculty in 1949 after two years at the Johns Hopkins University. A native of Valencia, he received his degree at the University of Madrid in 1926.



Vicente Llorens

After teaching at universities in Italy and Germany, he joined the staff of the Historical Research Center in Madrid in the contemporary literature section in 1933. In addition to his duties with the center, he was for two years director of the International School in Madrid, which attracted wide attention for its pioneering experiments in the teaching of modern languages to children.

With the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War in 1936, Prof. Llorens joined the Spanish Loyalist Army, serving as lieutenant until the end of the war, when he went to the Dominican Republic as professor of Spanish at the University of Santo Domingo from 1940 to 1945. After two years at the University of Puerto Rico, he came to this country in 1947.

After his retirement from the Princeton faculty in 1972, Prof. Llorens became professor of Spanish at the State University of New York at Stony Brook until 1976. At the time of his death, he was revising a manuscript for a lengthy study of Spanish romanticism to be published in Spain by Editorial Castalia.

He was the author of "The Liberals and the Romantics," a study of Spanish exiles in England from 1823 to 1834, published in 1954 and now in its second edition. He wrote numerous volumes of critical and historical essays and was the editor of a two-volume anthology of Domincan literature published in 1944 in observance of the centennial of the Dominican Republic's independence.

At Princeton he taught graduate and undergraduate courses in the Spanish language and style, the Spanish and Spanish-American novel, the literature of Hispanic life, and Cervantes and his age. As a sideline, he had compiled a vast directory of Spanish republicans in exile since the civil war (1936-39).

Surviving are his wife, the former Amalia Garcia; his brother, Carlos, of Valencia; his sister, Virginia, of Madrid; and his sister-in-law, Josefina Llorens, and nieces, Ana and Maria Jose Llorens, all of Princeton. His first wife, the former Lucia Chiarlo, died in 1956.

Funeral services were held in Spain, with interment in Jalance, Prof. Llorens' home village in the province of Valencia. A memorial service will be held in Princeton in the fall.

Dr. Herman A. Witkin of 88 Balcort Drive, an internationally known psychologist and a Dsitinguished Research Scientist at Educational Testing Service, died July 8 at New York Hospital, New York City. He was 62.

Dr. Witkin, an authority on cognition and personality, directed a group of behavioral scientists at ETS in a program of research on personality and social behavior. He gained internaitonal prominence for his pioneering studies on the contrasting ways in which people process information, or their "cognitive styles."

TO PRESENT MUSICAL

At Kingston Church. T.R.O.U.B.L.E., Inc., a teenage outreach of the First Presbyterian Church of Sayreville, will perform the musical "Joy" on Sunday at 7:30 in the sanctuary of the Kingston Presbyterian Church.

T.R.O.U.B.L.E. stands for Teenagers Reaching Out, Understanding, Believing and Loving Everyone. Originally a Presbyterian group, they now include members from all denominations of Christian belief. The group is dedicated to the total support of its members and to the concept of sharing their faith with each other.

The adult advisers for the group are Richard and Karen Taylor and Donna Mehl of Sayreville. The group of 30 teenagers have performed their music throughout New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

This production of "Joy," written by Bill Cates and Ed Seabrough and published by Broadman Press, is presented in cooperation with the Home Mission Board in Atlanta, Ga. It tells the story of a typical youth choir whose members are challenged to "do something" with their Christian faith. Their director arranges a two-week tour throughout the Northeast and while in New York City they work at a neighborhood youth center and come to know Jake, the local hoodlum.

Jake is convinced that these "Jesus kids" are a bunch of phonies. Pam, a member of the group, persuades Jake that, even if no one else does, she and God care very much about him. When he realizes she is sincere, he begins to feel the "joy" of becoming a Christian.

"Food As Entertainment Concept" Suggested As Main Theme for Expanded Palmer Square

"Food as an entertainment concept" should be the theme of Palmer Square, says the retail-marketing consulting firm (Walter K. Levy Associates) hired by Palmer Square, Inc. and its majority stock-holder Princeton University to suggest a marketing approach for the retail part of an expanded Square.

But Eugene J. McPartland and Michael J. Feldman, delegate and alternate to the Borough's CBD Steering Committee, emphasize way up front in their summary of the Levy report, that "in no sense" should the Levy recommendations be construed as PSI's action plan for the future.

Why food?

Because shoppers polled by Levy said Princeton had a reputation for good restaurants. "Gourmet food, cookware and other food-related accessories have a positive image with area shoppers," the report says.

The consultants recommend that Palmer Square feature a broad range of restaurants -- a New York-style delicatessen, an Italian restaurant, an old-fashioned ice-cream parlor and the like.

THEME AND VARIATIONS: If food were to become the theme of an expanded Palmer Square, one of the variations on that theme is already being played. The Terrace Cafe of the Nassau Inn, opening on Hulfish, is a popular lunch and cocktail spot on warm days.

In addition, there should be stores selling natural foods and herbs, ethnic foods like Oriental vegetables, pastas and sausages, gourmet shops with cheeses, coffee and tea and stores with fresh garden produce and fruits.

Next door, so to speak, would be stores where customers could buy equipment for freezing, canning or drying food and kitchen utensils ranging from gadgets to the most sophisticated and advanced cookware.

Wine glasses, silverware, table settings, salad bowls and pepper mills would be sold nearby, perhaps in conjunction with candles and gifts, wicker baskets and, of course, wine and liquor.

Adding it all up, Levy suggests that the ideal mix for Palmer Square would be 40 per cent restaurant and food-oriented establishments; 20 per cent decorative home furnishings and accessories supporting the "food as entertainment" theme, and the remaining 40 per cent apparel, accessories and miscellaneous.

Focus "Too Narrow." As it is now, the report says, Princeton's retail focus "is narrow and its appeal limited." It is seen as service-oriented, not offering a strong or balanced retail picture.

Princeton is viewed as a pleasant shopping environment where women can enjoy browsing, but lack of diversity and special events, means that the downtown area is not seen by people as a place where the family as a whole can have a good time.

Levy Associates mailed its questionnaire to a random sample of women, age 18 and over, living in communities regarded as the primary and secondary sources of downtown Princeton shoppers. No men were surveyed. Retailers generally believe that women are the primary shoppers.

In addition, Levy gathered information from more distant locations, from people who might travel to Princeton for a week-end or an afternoon outing, or dinner. A modified questionnaire was sent to both men and women students at Princeton University.

Buying Habits Surveyed. In its questionnaire, Levy asked people how they felt about shopping areas and malls, what their buying habits were, what their patterns were for eating out and shopping , and what kinds of stores they would like. The Universtiy feels that the number of replies was "more than adequate" to provide a statistically reliable sample.

Levy Associates concluded, from its survey, that the major shopping audience is largely composed of what it calls "traditional" shoppers.

Especially when they buy clothing, Levy found, "these shoppers are less impulsive, traditionally buy investment clothing which will last years (and) generally tend to buy less, due to their middle-aged cast and reduced needs."

These characteristics aren't so pronounced, by the way, when it comes to buying housewares, gifts or food.

Student Shoppers. Students are a good economic foundation for retailers who meet their needs, but most students buy clothes at home before leaving for college, except for things like sneakers, underwear or jeans.

Students do provide a brisk market for other things, especially those related to food and music, the survey found.

Levy also concluded that distant shoppers or occasional shoppers are not a major source of potential business for downtown Princeton. When these people do shop or eat in the Square, it is usually in the evening, or after some event at McCarter or Jadwin, or elsewhere.

Shoppers said they regarded

AVANT-GARDE STAGE DESIGN? Looks like it. Actually, it's "The Painting of McCarter Theatre," a rarely-done work now in revival. They're saying around the theatre that this is the first time the auditorium has been painted in 51 years—not since the theatre was built in 1928. Walls will be a dark rose-burgundy, ceiling beams will be brown and the space between a slightly lighter shade of brown. The six-week paint job was made possible by a grant from the John Jay and Eliza Jane Watson Foundation.

News Of The THEATRES

"PICNIC"

With Street Theatre. The mobile stage that carries Street Theatre productions to the far corners of wherever, will travel to Redding Terrace next Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. premiere of Street Theatre's major 1979 production, "Picnic."

The William Inge romance will play in the Princeton area under the following schedule. Except for Redding Terrace, show time is 8 p.m.

Wednesday, July 18, Redding Terrace; Thursday, July 19, Littlebrook School; Friday, July 20, Maurice Hawk School (West Windsor); Saturday, July 21, Riverside School; Sunday, July 22, Palmer Square (post office green); Thursday, July 26, Princeton Community Village; Friday, July 27, Palmer Square; Saturday, July 28, Princeton High School.

"Picnic" is laid in a small town in Kansas in 1955. It looks at the Owens family and their friends and an unmarried lady school teacher, and it shows the effect that one person has on their lives.

The cast consists of Ellen Pearl, Dave Hummel, Rochelle Jacobs, Ken Menken, Karen Schleyer, Ceila Munro-Jones, Anne Hughes, Gregory Lieberman, Marian Sanders, Amy Binkoff and John Wible. Debbie Bellow is directing.

Members of the crew are Ken Junkins, Alex Kappas, Jean Taylor, Fergus McCormick, Pat Underwood, John Solar and Darwin Smith.

Productions of Street Theatre are free, but the audience is asked for a donation.

"KING AND I"

Now, in New Hope. Is Anna, in "The King and I," the original women's libber, as director Ruth Kalatucka believes? Audiences are invited to the Bucks County Playhouse, now through July 22, to take a fresh look at the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, and decide for themselves.

In the role of Anna, the teacher from England in the royal court of Siam, the New Hope theatre has Terry Boyle. Opposite her as king – the role associated with Yul Brynner – is Robert Parrish.

Ms. Boyle has just played the leading role in the Bucks County Playhouse production of "Brigadoon" and has been in Playhouse productions of "West Side Story" and "The Sound of Music." Mr. Parrish is baritone soloist at Trinity Episcopal Church in Trenton.

In other roles, director Kalatucka has Roselyn Gertman and Michael Kutner as the lovers, Tuptim and Lun Tha, and Nancy Jackson as Lady Thaing. Other featured

AND NOW ... AGATHA

Mystery Play to Open. "Towards Zero" follows last summer's "Mousetrap" as the Agatha Christie Special for Summer Intime. The Christie mystery will open this Thursday at 8 p.m., and a champagne reception for the audience will follow the final curtain.

Other performances -- no champagne -- will be given this Friday, Saturday and Sunday and again next Friday, Saturday and Sunday with Sunday matinees both week-ends at 2:30 p.m. Performances are in Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus and reservations may be made at 452-8181.

In "Towards Zero," a group of week-end guests have gathered at a country house. They have arrived for the inevitable murder as if by appointment. The zero hour, toward which everything has been moving, is about to strike. Murder is done. But it seems impossible that any of the guests could have committed it.

Celeste Clark and Teresa Doucette will play the present and former wives of a playboy who will be portrayed by Kevin Meconi. Lenn Galla and Tad Kepper will be two of the ladies' admirers, and Laura Halper and Wendy Saivetz will assume the roles of the elderly hostess and her frustrated secreatry.

Dale Coye -- who was in "Mousetrap" -- will be a lawyer, and so will Richard Maynard. Jon Tenney and Nancy Bleemer are a pair of baffled bobbies. John Whitesell II is directing.

BAND ORGAN DUE

At Shopping Center Event. To give atmosphere to the annual sidewalk sale, the Princeton Shopping Center Merchants Association has invited Paul and Maryl Torin to make music on their 1937 Wurlitzer Band Organ and other instruments on Saturday between 11 and 3 in the Mall.

In addition to the special sound of the Wurlitzer Band organ, which the Torins say is the only one of its kind now in existence, old tunes will be played on pipes, drums and glockenspiels. About 10 years ago Mr. Torin picked up a player piano from an antique dealer just for fun. One old piano led to another, and the Torins now have a housefull of mechanical instruments, all of which are old and some very rare.

All of the instruments are played automatically or with the use of paper rolls or pin cylinders. These are activated by hand cranks, foot pedals and switches, and in the band organ, by an electric motor.

According to Mrs. Torin, many of the early automatic instruments were manufactured near Buffalo, N.Y., because of the large German settlements there. Such instruments were popular in Germany at the turn of the Century. Some were used in saloons and amusement parks and others in private homes.

Band organs, which were ornately carved and decorated with paintings and pastoral scenes, were played on the streets of Europe and in this country at merry-go-rounds and at ice skating rinks.

CLASSICS

Truffaut, "Singin'". Movies and movie-making are the themes of the new double feature in McCarter's Summer Cinema series. Francois Truffaut's "Day for Night" and the musical, "Singin' in the Rain" will be screened starting next Wednesday through Sunday in Kresge Auditorium on the University campus.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday evenings, "Day for Night" will be shown at 7:30 and "Singin' in the Rain" at 9:40. Show times will be 8 and 10 respectively on Friday and Saturday evenings.

In "Day for Night," "Truffaut mixes the dramas of cast and crew on a film location on the Riviera. In his movie-within-a-movie are Jean-Pierre Leaud, Jacqueline Bisset, Jean-Pierre Aumont and Valentina Cortese.

"Singin' in the Rain," from 1952, is often hailed as one of the best movie musicals of all time. It stars Gene Kelly, who shared the direction with Stanley Donen. The songs and stories of Hollywood during the transition from silents to sound, form the plot. The story was by Comden and Green and the songs include "You Were Meant for Me," "Make 'em Laugh" and the title song.

PIANO FESTIVAL SET

At Choir College. As part of a summer filled with concerts, Westminster Choir College will present a piano festival from July 15 trrough the 19.

Workshops and master classes which may be auditioned by the public will be held during the day by pianists Grant Johannesen, Richard Goode, Harold Zabrack, Ilana Vered, Konrad Wolff, Marian Hahn, William and Louise Cheadle, Ana Maria Trenchi de Bottazzi and Ivan Davis. The festival is being coordinated by Phyllis Alpert Lehrer, head of the piano department at Westminster.

In the evenings at 8, concerts open to the public will be held in Bristol Chapel on the Westminster campus. Tickets may be obtained at the door for $5. For further information call 924-7416.

Grant Johannesen wil begin the series on Sunday. He will play the Schumann "Fantasy" and works by Chopin, Faure and Debussy. Recognized as one of today's great pianists, Mr. Johannesen gave his New York debut in 1944 and made his first European tour in 1949.

The second recitalist, Richard Goode, will include Chopin's "Ballade in G minor" and Beethoven Sonata in E, opus 109 on Monday. Mr. Goode, who has been called "a musician's musician," is known both as a soloist and a chamber music specialist. He is an original member of the Chamber music Society of Lincoln Center, has made two national tours with "Music from Marlboro," and has played with the most renowned string quartets as well as playing solo and orchestral performances worldwide.

On Tuesday, Ilana Vered, the young Israeli pianist, will play the Schumann "Kreisleriana," Beethoven "Waldstein" Sonata in C opus 53, and the Brahms-Paganini "Variations." Of Polish-Russian descent, Miss Vared's parents taught piano and violin in Tel Aviv, discovering her prodigious ability when she was three. Enrolled in the Paris Conservatory at 13, she won a first prize on graduation at 15. After further study at Juilliard, she has been appearing in recital and with orchestra in major cities in this country and abroad.

Schubert's "Wanderer Fantasy," Bartok's "Sonata" and Copland "Variations" will be presented by Marian Hahn on Wednesday, July 18. Miss Hahn, a native of Larchmont, N.Y., has won many prestigious competitions including the Leventritt, Kosciuszko, Busoni, and Concert Artist Guild Auditions. She has been heard in solo recitals throughout the United States and has appeared with the Cleveland Orchestra, North Carolina Symphony and the Westchester Philharmonic among others.

Ivan Davis' recital on July 19 will headline the Schumann "Papillion" and "Carnival Scenes from Vienna." Mr. Davis, a pupil of Vladimir Horowitz, has been hailed as a "classic virtuoso in the romantic tradition." Besides his performing and teaching career, he has been very active as a recording artist. Recordings, along with various concerti include the "Art of the Piano Virtuoso," "Great Galloping Gottschalk" and most recently Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Pops Concert A Success in Jadwin

Most of last Wednesday's holiday activities were washed down the drain, along with the fanciful forecasts of radio and television weatherman for a beautiful Fourth of July.

The events surrounding the Pops Concert were limited also; the picnic cancelled and the fireworks postponed to the following night. But the event was far from a total loss. As planned the concert by the New Jersey Symphony was moved inside Jadwin Gym, and the spirited performance given by this superb orchestra did much to dispel the gloom of the day.

As the 7:30 starting time approached, it became apparent that the audience was going to be larger than anticipated. But extra chairs were hastily set up on the floor, and by the time conductor Thomas Michalak made his way to the podium some 15 minutes late, almost all had found seats. The audience was estimated at around 6,000.

The concert was warmly received by the huge crowd, especially the singing of soprano Clamma Dale, who sang selections from Bizet, Puccini and Verdi. When director Michalak substituted music from "Porgy and Bess" for a medley from "Hair," one wished Ms. Dale could have returned to sing again. She received wide acclaim for her portrayal of Bess in the Houston Grand Opera Company's production of the musical.

The traditional finale, Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" was played without the fireworks, but only the visual display was missing. There was plenty of noise at the appropriate moments, provided by shot gun blanks fired into 55-gallon drums, which if done right, can make a "pretty good resonance," according to Ruth Thornton, one of the coordinators of the event.

If the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra had any doubts about its popularity in past Pops Concerts, it need worry no more. On a rainy night with no picnic or fireworks, it proved to be a fine drawing card.

WAYNE: A TRIBUTE

Double Feature. A double feature consisting of "Stagecoach" and "Red River" will inaugurate a three-part retrospective film tribute to the late John Wayne next Monday and Tuesday in Kresge Auditorium.

"Stagecoach" will open each evening at 7:30 p.m. Made in 1939, it was the first of the 15 films Wayne made with director John Ford. It includes such staples as the prostitute with the heart of gold (Claire Trevor); the inebriated doctor (Thomas Mitchell) and the gallant Southern gambler (John Carradine).

"Red River," made 13 years later, shows the first cattle drive down the Chisholm Trail, with stampedes, Indian battles and gunfights. In this film, Wayne plays a stupid bully who eventually discovers his own humanity in a slug-out with his adopted son, played by Montgomery Clift in his first screen role.

Bigger Library Questioned.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I was astounded to read that all plans for the development of the central business district include expanding the public library. I question thia for many reasons:

1. At a time when the youth population is declining, do we need a larger children's department?

2. At a time when nearby communities are growing and opening their libraries and when the public high school is at last expanding its facilities do we need to enlarge the town library?

3. At a time when everyone is complaining about federal taxes do we need to fight our way to the public trough to slurp up government funds?

4. At a time when local property taxes are so high do we need to add to them to maintain and staff our share of a larger library?

5. At a time when more women are working will as many of them continue to use the library?

6. At a time when energy costs make getting to the library difficult can we expect people to increase their attendance?

7. At a time when libraries must pay more for heating and cooling can we justify a larger plant even if we install an expensive solar system?

8. At a time when our population is growing older can we expect them to increase their use of the library as reading and going out become more difficult?

I have used the Princeton libraries all my life and am proud of our present facility but I do not go along with the theory that bigger is necessarily better or that service organizations must feel that they are not doing their job properly if they do not try to increase their programs and budgets.

I also question the American Library Association advertisement which has appeared in so many publications lately which shows exercise classes and other non-book related programs as a part of library service. Audio-visual materials certainly open up many possibilities for libraries but they should not lose sight of their original purpose and function and try to rival the YM-YWCA.

My family and I use the library constantly and appreciate it, but I never know of a time when we couldn't find a seat, or had to wait in a long line or couldn't adjust our use to its hours. Many libraries keep their collections current and trimmed with yearly sales of duplicate and outdated books. I can never recall our library doing this. They have an excellent system for sharing collections with other local, county and state libraries and, I believe, get some cooperation from the University and other school libraries in the area.

At a time when we are feeling the limits of our resources of all kinds we must all question our priorities and accept the fact that although we can have anything we are willing to pay for, we may not be able to have everything that everyone wants and we may have to balance the need of one "public" agency, such as the Rescue Squad, against another, the library, for example.

I realize that questioning the expansion of the library may be heresy to many, but I am not afraid to do this and ask others to think about it also.

Medical Center Praised.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

My husband was recently a patient in the Princeton Medical Center and even though he was very ill and we were very worried and distressed about his condition, we felt his being there was one of the most gratifying experiences of our lives.

My daughter and I were with him almost constantly and we were both very pleased and impressed with the wonderful care he received from the day of his admittance to the day of his discharge.

My daughter said that she had never met so many kind and considerate people and it was such a great feeling to know that so many people "really care" about others.

It was so helpful, and eased our worries, to have the doctors take their time to talk to us and explain what was being done. There are so many people I would like to thank for being so wonderful to all of us, but I can't list them all. However, I do want to give a special "thank you" to our personal physician, who was always there when we needed him and also to Dr. Green and his excellent staff in the X-ray department. I would also like to praise the medical residents and the interns and the nursing staff in all areas of the hospital, especially the intensive care and the special care units.

My husband and I want to say that if the need ever arises there is no better place than the Princeton Medical Center.

"VACATION TIPS"

A "get away" fun vacation on the shores of Great Lake in beautiful Maine.

Nestled amongst tall pines, you'll have your own cabin right on the lake.

Each cabin has a stove, refrigerator, hot water and maid services provided. Enjoy 3 home cooked meals, swim, enjoy the lodge where you can play table tennis or quiet reading by the huge stone fireplace.

Your hosts are Clayton and Betty Grant. Clayton is chief engineer with the Maine Fish and Wildlife Dept. He can tell you about the excellent fishing right at your doorstep. Obtain a fishing license and rent a boat right at the lodge.

For the more athletically inclined, there is 1 hour daily of riding at Jack Carlton's Riding Stable. Or paddle tennis and tennis.

Woodland Camp is open from May through October.

This recommendation comes from Philip Cobb, recently retired Princeton School administrator who rates the Grants Woodland Camp as one of the best. Come enjoy the out-of-doors for only $35 per day per person.

Palmer Square

downtown Princeton as an inconvenient location because there isn't enough parking and because most stores are not open long enough or at convenient shopping hours.

Palmer Square can become a viable shopping area, Levy Associates concludes, but not with the present amount of retail space. The study declares that a 60,000 or 70,000 square foot retail expansion, co-ordinated with existing stores, would provide "a better opportunity for a more powerful and viable shopping area."

Plans that have been before the CBD Steering Committee suggest a maximum of 54,800 square feet of additional retail space for Palmer Square itself, with another 5,000 to 18,000 feet of commercial (presumably either retail or office) incorporated into either a garage or a PCH apartment building.

Garages a Must. "There is no question," Levy says, "that contiguous parking is absolutely necessary for the success of the Palmer Square project....Without the construction of the two proposed garages, we cannot in any way endorse the addition of any retail space."

The firm says in its report that the theme idea has been successfully introduced in such places as the Citicorp Building in New York and Faneuil Hall in Boston. Unlike these places, however, Palmer Square must also provide clothing and what the report summary calls "functional merchandise."

But the stores supporting the "food for entertainment" theme would "create the excitement and serve as the major attractions, while also fulfilling high-priority needs of the community, as expressed in the survey results. Apparel and miscellaneous categories supplement the theme, by providing a necessary volume base for Princeton's primary shoppers."

Levy Associates, based in New York, has a list of clients including Brooks Brothers, Lord and Taylor, Montgomery Ward, Hoffritz Cutlery and Marshall Field.

ENTERTAINMENT LISTED

For Senior Picnic. The annual Landau senior citizen picnic will again have Matthew B. Maxwell, former Princeton University employee, acting as host and master of ceremonies.

The affair will be held on Thursday, July 19, from 3-7 at Prospect on the university campus. Accompanying Mr. Maxwell will be Helen Sherman and Mattie McNair as hostesses.

All senior citizens of Princeton Borough and Township are invited and may make reservations by calling Jocelyn Helm at the Senior Resource Center, 924-7108. The rain date is Friday, July 20.

Martha Hartmann, entertainment chairman, reports that George Carol Quintet, sponsored by the Music Performance Trust Fund, in cooperation with Local 62 of the American Federation of Musicians, will furnish music from 5-7. There will be a talent show, including short skits and folk dancing, from 4-5.

Those who are interested in performing in the skits or joining a folk dancing group for exhibition dancing at the picnic may call Beatrice Smith, 921-0855, from 4:30 to 5:30. Mrs. Smith is a professional folk dancer who will rehearse and train performers without charge. There will be no long parts to memorize and men as well as women are needed.

Bottles of champagne will be given as prizes. Those who sing or play a musical instrument are also welcome. A folk dancing rehearsal will be held Thursday at 2 at the Valley Road School.

A hand-braided wool rug, made by seniors at the Spruce Circle Resource Center, will be raffled at the picnic. It is currently on display at Princeton Bank & Trust, Palmer Square. Raffle tickets may be purchased at the Senior Resource Center, at Landau's and Redding Circle.

Proceeds of the raffle, which is sponsored by the American Association of University Women, will be shared by the Senior Resource Center and the AAUW Fellowship Fund.

There will be posters again this year, contributed by youngsters involved in Princeton's playground programs. The posters will be judged on Thursday and displayed in store windows and prominent places throughout town. The winners will receive money as prizes.

One of the most unusual stories in baseball history concerns a man named Ray Jansen....He played in only one big league game in his life, with the St. Louis Browns in the American League, in 1910....In that game he got four hits in five at bats -- but never played again....He was released after that one game despite his success at the plate -- and finished with the amazing lifetime batting average of .800.

POST 76 WINS TWO

To Climb Into Third. Back-to-back wins over the weekend enabled Princeton Post 76 to climb into third place in the hotly-contested Mercer County American Legion league race.

With only one division in the league this year, the ten teams are vying for the top four playoff berths. Currently, Trenton Post 314 and Hamilton Post 31 are tied for first with 12-5 records and 24 points. Post 76 has 10 wins, six losses and a tie for 21 points, while Lawrence Post 414 and Trenton Post 93 are tied for fourth. Both are 10-6 for 20 points. Still in contention are Broad Street Park Post 313 (9-8) and Bordentown Post 26 (7-8-2).

Post 76's Al Kandell did it all in Sunday's 10-6 victory over Bordentown in Bordentown. Kandell drove in two runs on four hits, including a triple to gain his second win on the mound against one loss.

As a pitcher, he was a little less effective. After blanking the home team through the first six innings, Kandell gave up single runs in the seventh and eighth and four in the ninth. He was touched for 14 hits but kept them scattered until the end. Bordentown made it easier by committing six errors, three by second baseman Dave Dominici.

Keith Greener and Brent Robinson each had two hits -- Princeton had 11 off losing hurler Fritz Geisert -- and Dave Reed drove in two runs with a triple. Greener also tripled for the victors.

Weber 4-0. The previous day, Post 76 edged Hightstown, 5-4 as Scott Weber picked up his fourth win without a loss, getting help from Jon Luse who pitched the last two innings. Weber scattered five hits while on the mound.

After a two-run first inning, Post 76 won it in the third with three more runs, the key hit a run-scoring single by Greener.

Princeton was also held to five hits by losing pitcher Ed Kowalski (1-3), two off the bat of Mark Adams. Hightstown sent single runs across in the first, third, sixth and seventh innings.

RACE TIGHTENS

In Women's Softball. Last season, Sweet Jersey Corn stopped Koffee Kup's 30-game win streak; Sunday, it was the Kup's turn to get even.

Scoring four runs in the bottom of the seventh on a bases-loaded home run by Vernell Carr to tie the game at 9, Koffee Kup scored the winning run in the eighth when Judi Grisham's sacrifice fly brought in Sonnie Young to end Corn's unbeaten streak at nine. Corn started off scoring four runs in the first inning, but home runs by Grisham and Lisa Yates earned the Kup a 4-4 tie after two innings.

Corn managed to built its lead to 9-5 going into the last inning, a triple by Maureen Nosal with two on a key blow. Four doubleplays were completed in the hard-fought contest.

In other games, PITS fell to its eleventh straight loss to Ivy Inn, 15-4, as Maureen Merrigan, Cathy Cifelli and Kathy Fischer supplied the hitting. Andy's Angels upended the Zephyrs, 13-5, as Debbie Breithaupt knocked in four runs, three of them coming on a home run.

Robin Mina tossed a four hitter as the Zephyrs again were plagued with early errors, and Conte's Bar took a 7-4 win from the Pacers to stay a half game from first place.

Last week's games saw Koffee Kup wallop Community Liquors, 32-10, as Joanne Rice lead the way with a four bagger and five RBIs. Jersey Corn again stopped Conte's, 4-2. Pam Carone got the win and had the hot bat with four straight hits. Ivy Inn, still fighting for a playoff spot, stopped the Pacers, 6-2, as Cathy Arcaro's three-run homer with two on and Kim Davison's four hits led the attack. Andy's Angels was an easy, 15-0 winner over P.I.T.S. as Robin Mina tossed the shutout. Meg Valentine and Kim Pope led the balanced assault.

The standings:

ROMA TAKES LEAD

In PYBA League. Roma Eterna, a champion a few years ago in the Princeton Youth Baseball Association, has taken the lead this season with an 8-1 record. Eagles, Post 76 and Engine No. 1 are bunched in second with identical 6-3 records.

In games last week, Roma defeated No. 1, aided by a grand slam by Andrew Bing, overcame Post 76, 11-5, on another Bing homer and Dino D'Angelo's double, and topped Century 21, 11-5.

Peter Kellog homered and doubled for Post 76 in the loss to Roma. Post then rebounded by outlasting Elks, 14-13, as winning pitcher Eddie Perna and Scott McNair contributed homeruns and Paul Crystal added three singles. Jamie McLaughlin batted in the winning run in the sixth. Andy Gellar, Ravi Babu, Joe Leddy, Tim Leddy and Ken Bazilla all hit safely for Elks.

Post 76 also counted Italian-American as a victim, crushing I-A, 16-4.

The Elks gained a split when they routed Engine No. 3, 18-4. Doug Davis, James Womack, Bezilla, Tim Leddy, Torben Larson, Gellar and Babu provided the offense, Gellar, Babu and Shannon Grover each connecting for a home run.

Engine No. 1 outslugged the Eagles, 17-16, with Charlie Reeves, Jim Opperman, Billy Scott and Fred Young leading the attack. Michael Petrone homered for the Eagles. The Eagles then won a slugfest of their own, shading Italian-American, 16-15, Petrone and Michael Elliot belting homers for the victors.

In other games, Engine No. 1 blanked Engine No. 3, 2-0, Billy Scott driving in the only runs with a double, and Eagles defeated Elks, 8-7, on a save in the sixth by Petrone. Bezilla, Davis, Babu, Gellar, Larson and Peter Guthrie all rapped doubles for the losers while Perna, Petrone and Elliot led the Eagles at the plate.

Elks is in third place with a 5-4 record, followed by No. 3 and Century 21, both at 2-7, while Italian-American is in the cellar at 1-8.

PRIZES AWARDED

In Soccer Camp. A number of Princeton area youths have won prizes at the Middle States Soccer Camp in Collegeville, Pa., which is run by Richard Broad, training director for the Princeton Soccer Association.

SOCCER CAMP STANDOUTS: Princeton area residents who have won awards at the Middle States Soccer Camp in Collegeville, Pa. are, back row: Jonathan Rush, Lafayette Road West; Dan Ronel, 27 Turner Court; Jay Bienkowski, 31 Randell Road end Ron Celestin, one of the leading scorers on the Princeton High School team. In the front row are Ian McCray, 58 Leigh Avenue (left) and Stephen Nape. Story this page.

In the high school age group, Daniel Ronel was awarded a prize for winning the slalom dribbling contest; Jay Bienkowski for winning the six-point shooting competition and Ron Celestin for winning both the penalty kick and ball juggling contests.

Celestin, a standout performer on the Princeton High School team the past two years, also won the Coaches' Award, presented to the "outstanding player in camp, the one who best represents the athletic and personal qualities that coaches look for in a soccer player." This is the second year Celestin has won the award.

In the younger age groups, Alan Aiken won the ball juggling contest; Ian McCray the slalom dribbling and penalty kick contests and Stephen Nape, the ball juggling and six-point shooting competition.

The previous week, Jonathon Rush won the Coaches' Award. John Perkins, Princeton High's outstanding distance runner, won a special prize for setting a new camp record in the "Cooper Test." He ran 2 and a third miles in 12 minutes.

NASSAU CLUB 3-0

After First Three Swim Meets. With three closely-contested meets already won, Nassau Swimming Club opens its defense of the Princeton Area Swimming and Diving Association team trophy in the off-age group championships this week at Flemington-Raritan.

In its initial encounter with Valley, Nassau won easily, 183-124, but then barely managed a one-point, 154-153, win over rival Community Park. Community Park's depth helped keep the score close as CP won five of seven relays. Double winners for Nassau were Sue Danielson, Susan Harris, Alison Fraker and Marc Nystrom.

Against Penn Brook, Nassau lost only one diving event (to Penn Brook's Jenny Wagner, one of New Jersey's top-ranked divers) but had double victors in John Healy, Susan Harris, Bridget Mahoney and Marc Nystrom. Double winners for Penn Brook were Mike Smith, Mark Pinkowski, and Corky Mather.

A fine effort by Penn Brook's Smith to close a half-pool length lead by Nassau in the final 17-u boys free relay, fell short by a body-length. Nassau won 175-132.

GREEN IS UNDEFEATED

In Summer Lacrosse. Green shutout Red in the second half enroute to an 8-4 win last week at the Princeton High Field to remain undefeated after three games in the Princeton Summer Lacrosse League.

A pair of former Princeton High players, Doug Firstenberg and Johnny Morris led Green. Firstenberg had three goals and two assists while Morris scored twice. Ted Baruch, Scott Zahn and Dave Lewis added single scores.

Scoring for Red were Bob Campbell, who had two, Mark Zawadsky and Dudley Fitzpatrick. Red had led, 3-1, after the first period.

In a second game, Gold edged Orange, 7-6, for its second win. Hal Kokes had three third-period goals to pace Gold, while teammate Peter Bulk scored a pair. Dan Bulk had two assists.

Chris Harford and Ted Williams each scored twice for the losers, Harford adding an assist. Pat Sheehan and Greg Ileher also scored.

LESSONS SUCCESSFUL

For Mentally Handicapped. Seven sessions ago, three mentally handicapped children walked onto the Community Park courts to start a series of tennis lessons taught by Sally Krisel, assisted by Cheryl Spratt. Not only were the three 12-year-olds uncertain about the lessons but Sally and Cheryl were also unsure of how well the children could handle the instruction.

Sally, an educational psychology major, and Cheryl, a physical education major, have had experience teaching mentally and physically handicapped children during their four years at college. Sally, now teaching tennis with the Princeton Community Tennis Program, and Cheryl, a publications sales director at the U.S.T.A. office in Princeton, started the tennis lessons for the handicapped as a learning process for both the children and themselves.

"We wanted to find out whether this kind of tennis program would work with handicapped children," they said.

Sally felt that John, Janet, and Kenny, two afflicted with Down Syndrome and one with a mild form of epilepsy, were a little hesitant about their first lesson. None had played before. Sally reported that her main concern was whether the children had the skill to learn tennis.

Improve Motor Skills. The goal they set for the children was to improve their motor skills. In each session they learned new drills to develop forehand and backhand ground strokes, the volley, and the serve, hoping to imporve their coordination.

Although John, Janet, and Kenny are impaired, Sally finds they are similar to normal children in teaching tennis, but a little slower. Sally says she takes the children through the same drills that any child learns when going through a tennis program but at a slower pace.

"To get the kids to do the tennis stroke and footwork at the same time was a problem in the beginning. We had to break down the progression one step further to teach them first the step, then the swing," she said. "Eventually, we put both together and now they can handle it well."

All three, after seven sessions, are ready for an advanced beginner level. Sally stated that Kenny does well in the volley. John can handle all the strokes, and Janet is ambidextrous. "I feel we have reached our goals and beyond," said Sally. "I never really expected them to handle the tennis skills that well."

Sally and Cheryl have used the first sessions of teaching mentally handicapped children as a pilot for other tennis classes they will be starting. Eventually, both want to expand not only more classes but also a tennis class for the physically handicapped.

The second session will begin when enough children have signed up at the Princeton Community Tennis office, 71 University Place. Classes will be held every Thursday, at 4:30 to 5:15 and 5:15 to 6.

PLAY AREA DEDICATED

In New Brunswick. The Rutgers Community Health Plan has dedicated the David S. Horton Garden and Pediatric Play Area. Construction of the outdoor play area was made possible by approximately 100 individual contrubutions to a memorial fund for David S. Horton, the late son of George and Pam Horton of East Brunswick and formerly Princeton.

Almost a decade ago, his search for an effective and coordinated approach to providing health care for his terminally ill young son led Dr. Horton to recognize the need for a health maintenance organization to serve the New Brunswick area. His initial research and persistent efforts to generate support for the idea resulted in the Rutgers University Board of Governors in 1970 providing a grant of $50,000 for the initial development of Rutgers Community Health Plan.

The play area adjoins the pediatric wing of the health center. It offers entertainment and temporary baby sitting for well children when accompanying an adult who is visiting a doctor. The Rutgers Community Health Plan is looking for volunteer child supervisors to staff the outdoor area, which includes a jungle gym. The indoor area will be stocked with games and books.

The Health Plan board hopes that this play area represents the first of additional amenities to health care made possible by outside contributors.
